

I cannot fathom that we live in a national climate where special interest groups can attempt to limit freedoms that our troops overseas are dying for on a daily basis. Instead of looking to subvert our rights as paying satellite radio customers the national broadcasters should look at the waterd-down,commercial-infested product being offered over the airwaves and spend their resources to improve their product. Unless we plan as a nation to overhaul our entire legal system a contract between XM radio and it's very satisfied subscribers is noones's business but our own. Please honor the freedoms which sets us apart from all other countries and dismiss such unfounded attacks by men with their heads buried in a sand of greed.
